2014 THE GOODS

By Caitlin Griffith

Ribbed Sake Set

Channel your inner calm with a minimalist sake-serving set: New Zealand-based Koromiko offers this clean design from Lisa Jones, an artist based in Portland, Oregon, and contributes one percent of proceeds to support arts in the community.

Tovolo Highball Ice Molds

Keep your Singapore Slings cool and concentrated with slow-melting ice cubes. Popped out of easily stackable ice molds, the smooth cylinders are sized right for highball glasses.

Gold & Champagne Marshmallows

Mini marshmallows gilded in 24-karat-gold make even the most battle-hardened holiday guest smile. Use Wondermade's box of 16 to melt over mom's traditional batch of sweet potatoes or serve alongside after-dinner hot chocolates, whether spiked or not.

Jackson Cannon Bar Knife

R. Murphy Knives, based outside Boston since 1850, teamed up with Jackson Cannon, proprietor of Boston's The Hawthorne, to offer a knife of excellent heft for garnish and citrus work behind the bar. The stainless steel tang runs the length of the knife; cocobolo wood feels luxurious in hands large and small. A functional addition for the serious barkeep or home hobbyist.

MZ Wallace + Food52 Farmers Market Tote Bag

Form meets function with this partnership between two NYC-based, women-run companies. With an easy-to-clean nylon interior, the navy bag holds up to 40 pounds of baby purple potatoes or peaches, with plenty of exterior pockets for bottles of wine and bouquets. To sweeten the deal, the collaborative team is donating $50 of each sale to the Edible Schoolyard Project.
